HOLY WEEK

"Following our hugely successful 'Christmas in July' last year, this year we explore Renaissance music from the other great festival in the Christian calendar: Holy Week. From Lamentations and settings of Stabat Mater to triumphant Easter motets, this is a repertoire of unrivalled depth and variety. A core work will be Brumel's great twelve-part 'Missa Et Ecce Terrae Motus' (the Earthquake Mass), which Orlandus Lassus himself directed and sang at the Munich court. The different combinations of voices and instruments which the 'Beauchamp' week uniquely provides will also be kept fully occupied with large-scale seasonal motets by German and Venetian composers including - of course! - Gabrieli."

The course is open to singers and players of cornetts, sackbuts, curtals, recorders, baroque strings, viols, continuo instruments. This Early Music course is unique in that, with its strong brass and loud wind sections, it is possible to play large scale pieces.

A level of competence is required from participants. Voices don't have to be beautiful, but singers need to have some sight-reading fluency and control of their voices; players need to be able to hit the right notes on suitable instruments at the right time! Pitch is A440. The tutors reserve the right to decide who plays/sings which part/instrument.

Each full day there are 4 tutor-led sessions: after breakfast, after morning coffee, late afternoon and after dinner. The tutors put up daily lists naming the instrumentalists for each piece to be played. There is ample opportunity in the early afternoon 'free time' for musicians to arrange groups amongst themselves to play any instruments they may not be listed to play.

PHILIP THORBY is well known as a performer, teacher and conductor of Renaissance and Baroque music. As a performer he has played recorder, viol and early wind instruments with many of London's early music ensembles, as well as in premieres of works by composers such as John Tavener, Imogen Holst, David Bedford and Paul McCartney. He founded and directed the Renaissance ensemble Musica Antiqua of London, which made seven highly acclaimed CDs of sixteenth century music, broadcast for the BBC and performed concerts in Britain and abroad. He now plays regularly with Philomel, an ensemble formed by some of his former students, and his new ensemble The Intrepid Academy, as well as continuing as a freelance soloist. As a teacher, he had a long career directing early music at Trinity College of Music (now Trinity Laban Conservatoire of Music and Dance) in London, of which he is now Emeritus Fellow. He was recently invited to direct Cambridge choral scholars and professional instrumentalists in a project on Cavalieri's opera "Il Rappresentazione di Anima e di Corpo", culminating in staged performances in Trinity College Chapel. His energetic, passionate and scholarly direction is also much sought-after on playing days and weekends, as well as on courses such as the Easter Early Music Week in Ascot, Cambridge Early Music Summer Schools (where he directs the Renaissance course and co-directs the Baroque one), the Irish Recorder and Viol course and in Venice, where he directs two courses a year, with final concerts in the Scuola Grande di San Rocco, where both Gabrieli and Monteverdi directed their own music!

DAVID HATCHER was born in Warwick and upon attaining the LTCL diploma two years after taking up music, he went on to study viola da gamba with Charles Medlam and recorder with Philip Thorby at Trinity College of Music, London. He began his career based in England, touring to America, Israel, France, Germany and the Netherlands. He has broadcast for both the BBC and independent radio and television. In 1987 he moved to Japan where he was to remain for the next nine years, taking an active part in that country's flourishing early music scene. He has recorded with Evelyn Tubb, The Consort of Musicke, I Fagiolini, Sprezzatura and the Japanese ensembles Chelys, Ensemble Ecclesia and the Bach Collegium of Japan. David now lives in Leominster and has appeared with the Royal Shakespeare Theatre, The Globe Theatre, The Consort of Musicke, Musica Antiqua of London, The Corelli Orchestra, The Harp Consort, Glyndebourne Opera and many other period orchestras and ensembles. He regularly teaches on summer schools and is in demand as a tutor for many weekend and day courses. Recent projects include performing in Damon Albarn's opera "Dr Dee" and performing and recording I Fagiolini's hugely successful interpretation of Striggio's 40-voice mass. He performed in the inaugural season of the Sam Wanamaker Playhouse in 2014 and in the highly acclaimed production of The Knight of the Burning Pestle in 2014 & 2015. He is a founder member of Philomel and The Intrepid Academy, which, under the direction of Philip Thorby, explores the rich heritage of early 16th century Venetian music.
